Interview Summary and Index 001 – Reid Johnson

Interviewee: Reid Johnson

Interviewer: R. Joe Zeidel

Date: March 6, 2015

Location: Salt Lake City, UT

Summary

Reid Johnson shares his memories of growing up in the neighborhood during the decades from the 1930s to 1950s. He talks about the outdoor activities of kids along his block of Harrison Avenue during summer and winter including roller skating, ice sliding, and touch football. He recalls the snow on residential sidewalks being cleared by a horse-drawn plow and tells of the lessons that he learned working briefly in shops at 15th and 25th. Reid remembers attending Uintah School, Roosevelt Jr. High, and East High and recalls how the faculty and students reacted to the principal's announcement of Victory in Europe in May, 1945. He tells about using the family car for transportation and growing up in Wasatch Ward where he met his future wife Donna. He talks about other activities such as roller skating on 14th E, school dances, and his first kiss during a church play. Reid remembers his cousin who was killed in the Pacific Theater during WWII. The interview is interrupted by a phone call.

Note: This is the first of two sound tracks for the same interview
